2. do not know if the instructors were civilian or military transportation experts. However, I believe that the instructors belonged to the transportation branch of service, and probably completed a transportation course or school prior to their assignments as instructors. The instructors were mainly Polish Army officers with the rank of lieutenant or captain. a few Soviet officers but can not give any details concerning their names, ranks, and duty assignments.

3. I do not know what types of transportation equipment were used. However, a number of vehicles at the school such as the Star 20, Skoda five-ton trucks, and Skoda five-passenger sedans. I assume that the manufacture of all equipment in the Polish Armed Forces was based on a Soviet pattern. I do not know to what extent Polish transportation equipment and component parts were interchangeable with equivalent Soviet equipment.
